

StirFry Seminars

August 2007

Greetings!

Wow, where did this summer go? If you're like myself, summer is never long enough. Hope you are making the most of this time in the sun or relaxing in some exotic land or place in nature. We have exciting news! In preparation for the Fall, we are coming out with a lot of new diversity products. I hope you will enjoy them and use them to create more conversations. The long-awaited The Color of Fear: Twelve Years Later is an inside glimpse in the making of this historic film. Last Chance for Eden 3 are the biographies of each person in the film. Each of their stories are moving and inspiring. I hope you will be touched and moved by these new products as I was in creating them.

"As we came down to finishing up the editing of the film, we still needed $27,000 to complete the film. With only weeks to go before the Premiere, I was out of time and cash. A friend of mine said he was going to fly down to see a Texas couple who were millionaires. After showing the film to the couple, the husband stood up and said that he didn't know any white folks like the ones depicted in our film. His wife yelled out, "Oh yes, you do. He's you and he's your family. Sign the check!"

And that is how we got the last $27,000 to finish the film. Sure sounds surreal, doesn't it? Unbelievable! Who would have guessed? Like something out of a movie, only this time, my destiny was unfolding, and they, like so many others, played an important part."
